

Katherine O'Dea is a seasoned sustainability professional with 20 years of experience working with business and industry. In 2014, she co-founded Circular Economy Strategists to engage businesses, governments and NGOs in the creation of a more sustainable system of commerce catalyzed by a transition from linear take-make-use-discard business models to more resilient and circular economy models. Katherine assists clients in maximizing their material investments by eliminating the notion of waste and developing cross supply chain synergies that enable continuous material valorization. Her work leverages her deep experience and knowledge of design for environment, sustainable materials management, industrial ecology, products of service, and reverse logistics principles.
